GARY FINCH

Gary Finch is a professional outdoorsman and conservationist from Fairhope, Alabama. He has been the host of the syndicated outdoor program "Gary Finch Outdoors," for over 32 years and can be seen weekly on WKRK TV 5, in Mobile, AL and Pensacola, FL and WSFA TV 12, in Montgomery, AL, as well as regional cable stations. He is a founding producer of the Outdoor Channel. After attending the University of Georgia, Finch joined the army to serve as a pilot. He currently resides in Fairhope, Alabama where he is a member of both the Outdoor Writer's Association of America (OWAA) and the Southeastern Outdoor Press Association, (SEOPA) as well as the National Eagle Scout Association. The Gary Finch Outdoors program has run continuously for over thirty-two years. Gary has written over 350 articles for various publications aimed at educating youth on proper safety and conservation while enjoying the great outdoors. He was honored to get to fly with the Navy's Blue Angels and has appeared on NBC's Today Show, educating the public on the Gulf of Mexico. Two of Finch's proudest moments are achieving the rank of Eagle, April 8, 1977 at the age of 15 and then witnessing his son, Christopher achieve the rank of Eagle, October 9, 2018. Finch's background as an Eagle Scout instilled, at an early age, the importance of long term planning to insure that we continue to preserve our natural resources. Gary is now passing on traditions learned to his two children, as well as other young people, through community involvement in local groups such as the Elks, Boy Scouts of America, and Rotary Club. He has also received numerous accolades and recognition from various local and state organizations, including Man of the Year for the Mobile Area Chamber of Commerce and the Conservation Award from the Governor of Alabama.
